Maintenance recommendations for the care of the felt Poufs.

You need to follow some simple rules so that the product would last a long time and does not lose its appearance.

Cleaning.

Wool has a unique ability to self-clean. So, with a small contamination, the product should be cleaned dry (it would be enough to clean the contaminated spot with a nap brush) and aired because wool, just like a human hair, absorbs odors.

If the surface of the pouf is heavily spoiled, you can manually wash it with warm water (40°) using detergents to clean wool. Thoroughly wash off the cleaner from the surface of the pouf and leave it out to dry in a ventilated and dry place. Individual spots can be moistened with warm water to clean the fabrics, wait for the dirt to dissolve and than wipe it with a dry cloth.

The removal of pellets.

The surface of any things made of natural wool, with time starting to pill. If pellets appear on the pouf, remove them with a special machine for removing pilling from woolen clothes, which are usually used to restore the surface of the wool sweaters, etc.

After the cleaning procedure or pellets removal, pouf can be handled through cotton fabric with a steam iron. That will give the product the initial fresh look.

Storage

Like all woolen items, felt needs to be protected from moth! Felt products and wool shouldn't be stored in dark closed spaces, like closets, and in dressing rooms along with clothes.

What to do if pouf stone soaked in water:

Pouf-stone may become wet, for example if it is on the street, as a result of a rainfall. Pouf should be dried in a ventilated, dry room or outdoors. Pouf-stone may be exposed to repeated moisture, with a required condition for further drying.
